b) To coordinate with the clinical services the collection and adequate preservation of control human samples (legal-medicine autopsies) and human epilepsy samples (from neurosurgery) (Activity 2);
c) To evaluate the changes in lipid rafts (planar rafts and caveolae) and to study its correlation with the distribution of ion channels, neurotransmitter receptors and transporters, and other plasma membrane proteins through molecular biology techniques and immunohistochemistry in the brain of MTLE-HS patients and in the rat TLE model (Activity 3);
d) To investigate the impact of the above-mentioned changes in the uptake and release of GABA and glutamate from isolated brain terminals of the human brain and of the rat model of TLE (Activity 8);
e) To evaluate the changes in the lipid composition of the synaptic membranes by biochemical methods and through interpretation of the lipidomic analysis performed by mass spectrometry in the animal model of TLE (Activity 4).

Tasks a), b) and d) will be conducted at the partner institution ICBAS – Instituto de Ciências Biomédicas Abel Salazar (UP), Laboratório de Farmacologia e Neurobiologia do ICBAS-UP, Rua Jorge Viterbo Ferreira 228, 4050-313 Porto, Portugal, under the supervision of Professor Doutor Paulo Correia de Sá that has the necessary infrastructure and experience to implement them.
